Welcome to....our best year yet, Sr. Mary Eileen, Dominican President; Kenia Acosta, SGA President; Audrey Lawrence, SGA Vice President; and Dohn Harshbarger, Dean of Student Development, trumpet in the 50th anniversary year.

Dominican College has nearly 8,000 alumni working in every field in our 21st century world. An all-female college originally, Dominican now welcomes students from over 20 foreign countries.

Good Day and Fare well, said our President

Dear Graduates,

Congratulations on your successful completion of the requirements for a Dominican College degree. I trust that you feel proud of all that you have accomplished.

Please know that as a graduate, you will always be part of the Dominican College community. As a member of the D.C. Alumni, you will receive regular updates on your college's developments through Dominican: Dateline. Please accept the invitations you will receive to return for Alumni Day, athletic events, or special anniversary reunions.

Plan to take advantage of the Privileges that are yours as a graduate. The Alumni Office and the Office of Career Counseling and Placement should prove most helpful as you begin the next phase of your life. Keep us aware of important events in your life. Your happiness and continued success are important to all who knew you during your years at Dominican. We hope that the lessons learned and the friends made will last you a lifetime.

Continue to be people of integrity and service, excelling in your chosen fields of employment. May every blessing accompany you and those you love in the many years ahead.

Sincerely,

Sister Mary Eileen O'Brien, O.P.

President

Graduation 2003....Sister Mary Eileen addressing the Class of 2003 and their families and friends. Scholar, administrator, planner, friend. Thank you Sister for showing us that we can be many different things too.

All together now, said our Dean of Students

Who says our Dean of Students doesn't give his all for Dominican? The annual Red Cross blood drive is the only time Dohn Harshbarger sits down for long.

Graduation Day! Dohn got to count all the chairs five times before everyone got there. And he and Eileen Foti are off and running to the next thing!

The sense of collegiality, student centeredness, and commitment of most of the faculty, administration, and staff immediately impressed me when I arrived at Dominican College in 1987. What clearly was missing, at least from my student life perspective, were the physical facilities that could house adequately after class programs, activities, or even casual student interaction.

While the college had expanded in its first thirty-five years beyond its the grounds of the Convent into leased classroom and administrative buildings, the College's basketball teams were playing their home games in Tappan Zee High School or at Nyack College, the student residents were housed in an old Masonic Nursing Home one-half mile away, and the commuters inhabited a small undistinguished cafeteria and a modest student lounge as their gathering places.

While many colorful stories could be and have been told about the old Residence Center including tales of deceased patients inhabiting the hallways, the building was less than ideal as a College residence hall. Today, through the efforts of many, not the least of which include College Presidents and the Board of Trustees, the College enjoys a new campus with a large, attractive gymnasium, a modern residence hall with multiple living options, and a beautiful dining center with health and bookstore facilities. An academic Health and Sciences complex will soon be added.

We are grateful for these new student life facilities, and we can only hope that as it evolves, it will always remain the institution of collegiality, student challenge, and support and dedication that it was when I first came here in 1987.

Work, work, work. Through Dohn's office come an eclectic set of tasks from student clubs to the yearbook to graduation. And he does them all.

Graduation Day, May 18, 2003. Dean Holt had the pleasure of addressing the Class of 2003 for their last time all together. He then presented the candidates for their degrees.

Calling all Academic Deans! With Associate Dean Ann Vavolizza, on their way to graduation practice.

“...when I came for my interview in 1979...”
said the Academic Dean...

I got my first look at Dominican when I came for an interview in 1979, after several years of working in big university systems. It was (in retrospect) a comically traumatic experience.

My interviewers took me to my office-to-be in Casey Hall, the former elementary school. The office had a water fountain that, like all the water fountains, in the building, was about 2 1/2 feet high, just about right for 7-year old people. The linoleum tile floor had pictures of cute clowns and adorable little duckies.

No, I couldn't visit the gym (there wasn't one) or the dormitory or dining hall (sorry, we didn't have those either). But I could have a catalog describing the array of academic program options and courses. This occupied a grand total of 30 pages - large print - plus 3 pages on an ROTC military program.

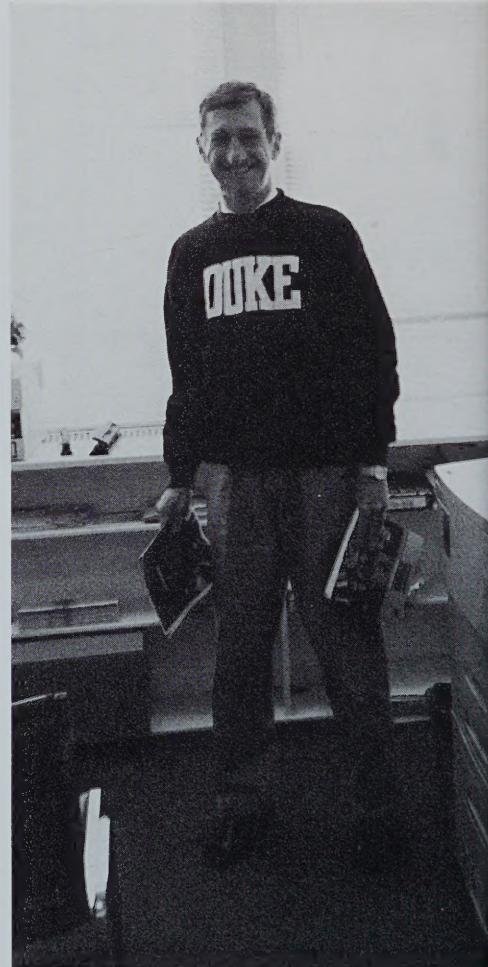

I thought that, well, I did need a job now and could always move somewhere else in a year or two. Besides, this seemed to be a place where (in contrast to some of my previous experiences) the administrators knew all the faculty and the faculty knew - and actually seemed to care about - their students. I thought that was pretty nice.

Twenty-four years later, as I look around at a campus with a handsome modern gym/dormitory/dining complex; with a completely transformed Casey Hall (including, yes, adult-size water fountains); and with an array of undergraduate and graduate program options - many of them nationally accredited - that it now takes a closely printed 72 pages of the catalog to describe.

In the back of my mind I suppose I still think, like most people, that I could always move somewhere else in a year or two. But I also keep noticing that this is a place where the administrators know all the faculty and the faculty know - and actually care about - their students.

And I still think that's pretty nice.

Student Awards Night, a special moment to share.

"...inquired about part-time employment..." said the Director of the Weekend College

My memories of Dominican College span the last 15 years and began on a Sunday afternoon when I came to Cooke Hall to register for a computer certificate course. I did not end up registering for the course but did have an interesting conversation with the advisor when I inquired about part-time employment at the college. She told me about the Weekend College program and suggested I drop a note to its Director, Mary Brennan, which I did. I did not receive a response until ONE YEAR LATER when Mary sent me a handwritten note saying she had an opening for a part-time advisor. I began working in the Weekend College six hours a week - and the rest, as they say, is history.

These 15 years have been a period of growth for my family and for me. My two children have grown through grammar school years to college. I, too, have grown. Just like the Weekend College students, I have learned that I can do things I never thought I could.

Each day, I consider myself so fortunate to be one of the lucky individuals in life who can truly say they are happy to come to work.

For fifteen years, I have been grateful to Dominican college for that - and I still am.

Those Were

The Days

A fond, fond look back at the school we have remembered so well....

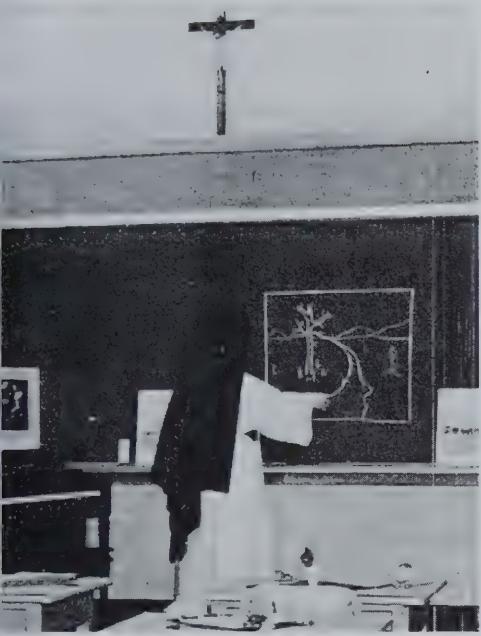

When we journeyed through the Aubade archives to find out what the Dominican editors back in the day wrote about our school, we found that there were numerous tributes to teachers, pictures of students laughing together, solemn ceremonies honoring the times, and rugged team members making a personal best. Dominican College, perhaps more than other schools, has always been about making those connections between people, a sharing of our experiences together. Alumni are welcomed back with opened arms and freshman are welcomed into the fold. There is a place for everyone here, and Dominican grows each year as its students grow too. From a small liberal arts college for women, to a bustling campus of day, evening, weekend, graduate, and undergraduate programs, Dominican has shaped its educational mission to match the temper of the times.

The Art Room The Many friends and benefactors of Dominican College made sure that the students would always have art to enhance the school curriculum as well as each student's own life.

How about those uniforms? Long before Title Nine assured equal parity in schools for men's and women's sports, our brightest and best wore these stylish uniforms on the gymnasium floor. Prelude to the miniskirt?

These Are The Days

A day in the life....

A war in Iraq, television telling all, clubs & parties, staying up late studying with friends, going to the mall, perennial pizza, hotel dorm room service, 50th anniversary celebrations, visiting families, prayer service, winter storms & spring showers, internet surfing, upload, download, down but not out, team spirit, rap, rock, make it real or just forget about it....Students will always find a way of making it their own and this is what we made it....

Work, work, work.

A Day Without Sunshine....

9/11 Remembered

Dr. Bonk addressed a gathering of students, faculty, and other Dominican College family members on the first anniversary of 9/11. He talked about terrorism, the need to protect ourselves in a dangerous world, and his hope for a peaceful world in the future.

Dr. Lounibos described how patriotism is becoming stronger in America again.

Dr. Troncone introduced the forum that day which was open to everyone to voice his or her opinion.

Sr. Kathleen Sullivan stated how proud she was of the troops for standing up for our country.

On September 11, 2001, terrorist hijackers flew two planes into the World Trade Center towers, killing thousands of innocent people and starting a chain reaction of sentiment hardly reached before by the latest generation. A third plane hit the Pentagon while the last plane crashed wildly in a Pennsylvania field, undone from its terrible deed by a courageous ad hoc crew of passengers, pilots, and stewards. It seemed for us here, at home, everyone knew someone who had experienced a person loss. As the larger story was still unfolding, we did here at Dominican College what we know how to do best, we prayed....

As the soot and dirt and ash rained over us,
We became one color.

As we carried each other down the stairs of
the burning building,
We became one class.

As we lit candles of hope and remembrance,
We became one generation.

As the firefighters and police officers fought their way into the inferno,
We became one gender.

As we fell to our knees in prayer and strength,
We became one faith.

As we whispered or shouted words of encouragement,

We spoke one language.

As we gave our blood in lines a mile long,
We became one body.

As we mourned together the great loss,
We became one family.

As we cried tears of rage and grief,
We became one soul.

As we shared with pride the sacrifice of heroes,
We became one people.

We are,
One color,
One class,
One generation,
One gender,
One faith,
One language,
One body,
One family,
One soul,
One people,

We are the Power of One.

We are United

We are America.

- Cheryl Sawyer, Ed.D

There is one more story to tell, that of the war raging in Iraq now, as the 2003 issue of Aubade goes to press. Our brothers, sisters, cousins, friends, and neighbors, several hundred thousand very brave young Americans and our leaders, are fighting to protect and serve us at home. Let this be the final tale in the senseless saga, of war and anger and vitriolic words, of destruction, desire, unleashed ambition, and a people who would cling to bitter words before recognizing the humanity of us all....

John 3:16

Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.

Recited together at Dominican College on September 11, 2002, prayer service, 8:16 a.m.

ULTIMO - "What I Did For Love"

Bringing us the song. Graduates from ten different years rehearsed for several months to do the Musical Memories show. Who had the most fun?

Day by day by day. Everyone in the audience sang along; how could we resist?

Flower Children still send us flowers.... Bouncing through the aisles, actors gave audience members flowers during the musical number "Day by Day."

The boys are on one side and the girls are on the other! This may be a scene from the play Grease, but sometimes, it still feels that way!

You can't do a show unless you have an audience. To all those Moms, Dads, pals, sweethearts, and angels, thanks for sharing the magic.

He sang, She sang....

Backstage - The Making of Musical Memories

When the curtain goes up and the overture plays, the audience sits back and enjoys the show. But before the show, there is much work to be done. The cast must rehearse their lines, dances, and songs for the stage; backstage, there is another world of rehearsal too. All the costumes are coordinated (whatever is missing from the wardrobe rack must be brought in from home), the scenery must be built, painted, and moved on stage; the lighting cues must be timed and practiced; the musicians must play for the singers; and even the make up must be perfected. Whatever is not on hand means the stage manager must ask for it, make sure it comes in, and kept it ready for the night of the show. No retakes - everything is live! Kudos to the stage crew for their great job on Musical Memories too.

One woman's old dress....is someone else's festive costume. Between the 20-something musical numbers and the twenty-something member cast, there were nearly 100 pieces on the show's wardrobe rack. All the zippers had to be unzipped and the buttons unbuttoned before the curtain went up so that the actors could quickly fly into their next outfits without missing a beat. They did.

James Quaranto, musical director, set up the drums before the show began. Everyone loves a musical, and the audience sang along with their favorites.

Another opening, another show. All those glamorous guys and dolls were backstage primping before curtain time, going over every line.

This is work!! You try putting on a pound of pancake and hoofing it up under the bright lights. And everyone is looking forward to next year's show already.

Adam and Eddie getting the tickets ready for sale. These two worker bees were everywhere, helping everyone.

The Aquin Players

by Tracy Lizotte

President of the Aquin Players

This year, the Aquin Players was comprised of past and current students of Dominican College. We had an extremely talented cast for this year's production of Musical Memories. The show celebrated 25 years of musical theatre with scenes from various shows that were performed at Dominican College dating back to 1969. The cast was mostly made up of alumni but also included six current students. All the actors and actresses worked closely together at rehearsals starting back in December. We shared a close friendship throughout this production that only continues to grow. I think I am speaking on behalf of the entire cast when I say that it was a privilege being involved in such an amazing show with so many extremely talented people. We thank everybody who was involved in making this show possible.

Welcome Back? More than one way to settle your differences and hang out.

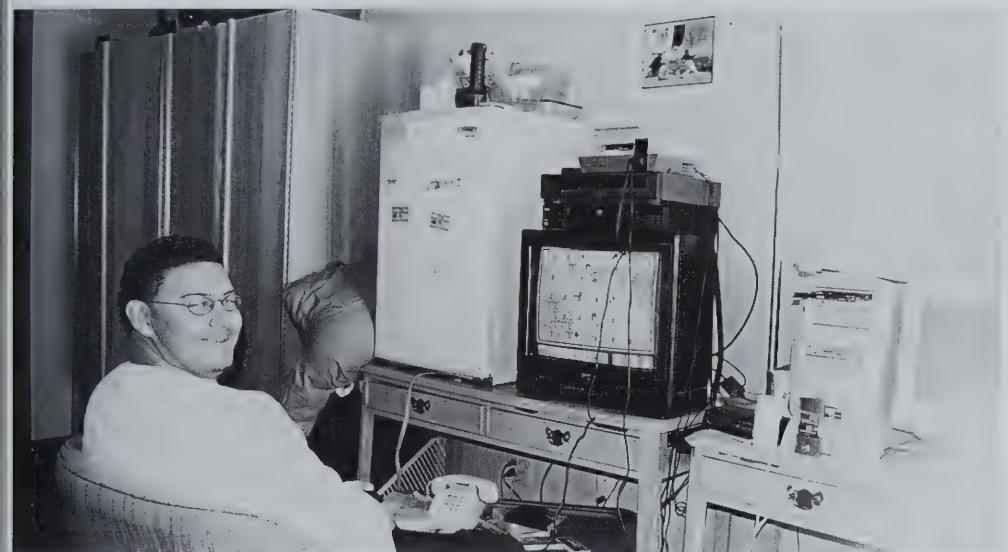

Forget pillow fights. Here's the modern college student warming up.

Who's chasing these guys?

Dorm Days

Ah, all the comforts of home.

When Hertel Hall was finally built, a collective sigh of relief went up around Dominican. A modern dormitory for the students, there is a lot of life, laughter, and learning that goes on there too.

Doing homework (dormwork?) 21st Century style. The computer is now an indispensable tool for every college student.

Dorming....

Hey, stop!!

Look.

Chill.

Visiting is so important when dorming. And you always bring what is most important from home. Here are Tony the Tiger and pals after a long day of classes.

He said, She said:

“Duh.”

“Hello?!!”

“He was like, ‘Okay.’
And I was like, ‘Whatever.’”

Hotel Life, Dorming II

By Jessica Flores

As Dominican College Celebrated its 50th Anniversary, it also celebrated its largest freshman class in history. These whopping numbers presented a greater need for more living space for on-campus students. Over the summer, a hand selected group of 48 upperclassmen, male and female, agreed to reside in the Comfort Inn Hotel in Nanuet, less than ten minutes away from the main campus. These students, referred to as CI students, shared triples and benefitted from the maid service once a week, an ice machine, their very own bathroom in each room, air conditioning, and even access to the hotel's swimming pool. CI students lived in 17 rooms, including a room for the Resident Advisor. Next year, upperclassmen will be returning there again while plans for a permanent second residence hall are in progress.

SOCS Coffee House.... "Two roads diverged in a yellow wood, and I, I want to live in the Comfort Inn too!" Mr. Eric Alba.

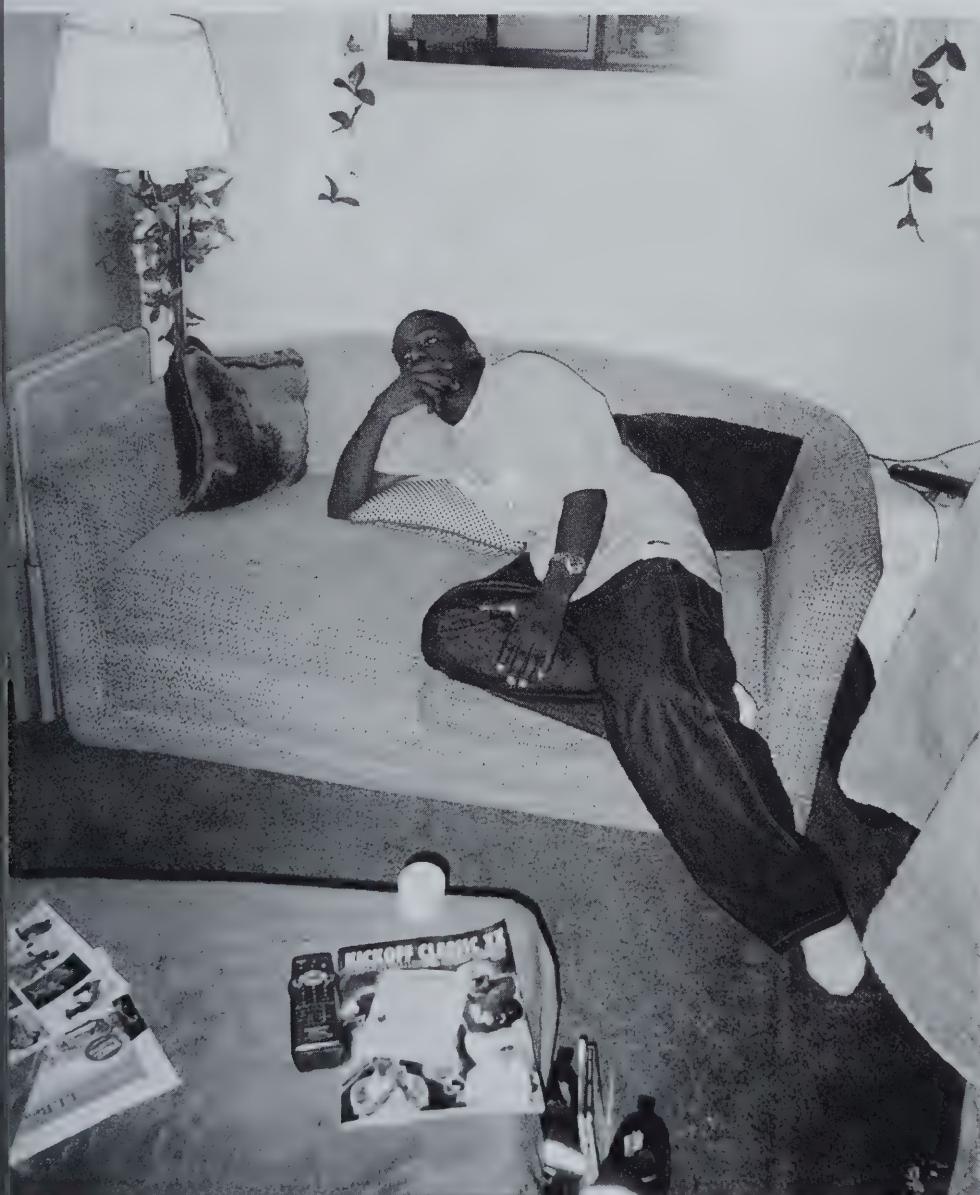

With ease, CI students make their room a pleasant place to play.

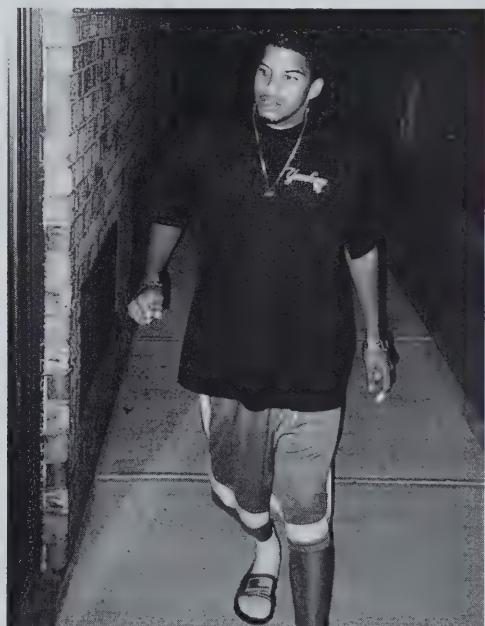

Students received many visitors and Greg invited his best friend, his puppy.

Looking for a room? Even though there were no outside numbers, students found it easier to go right from the parking lot into their rooms.

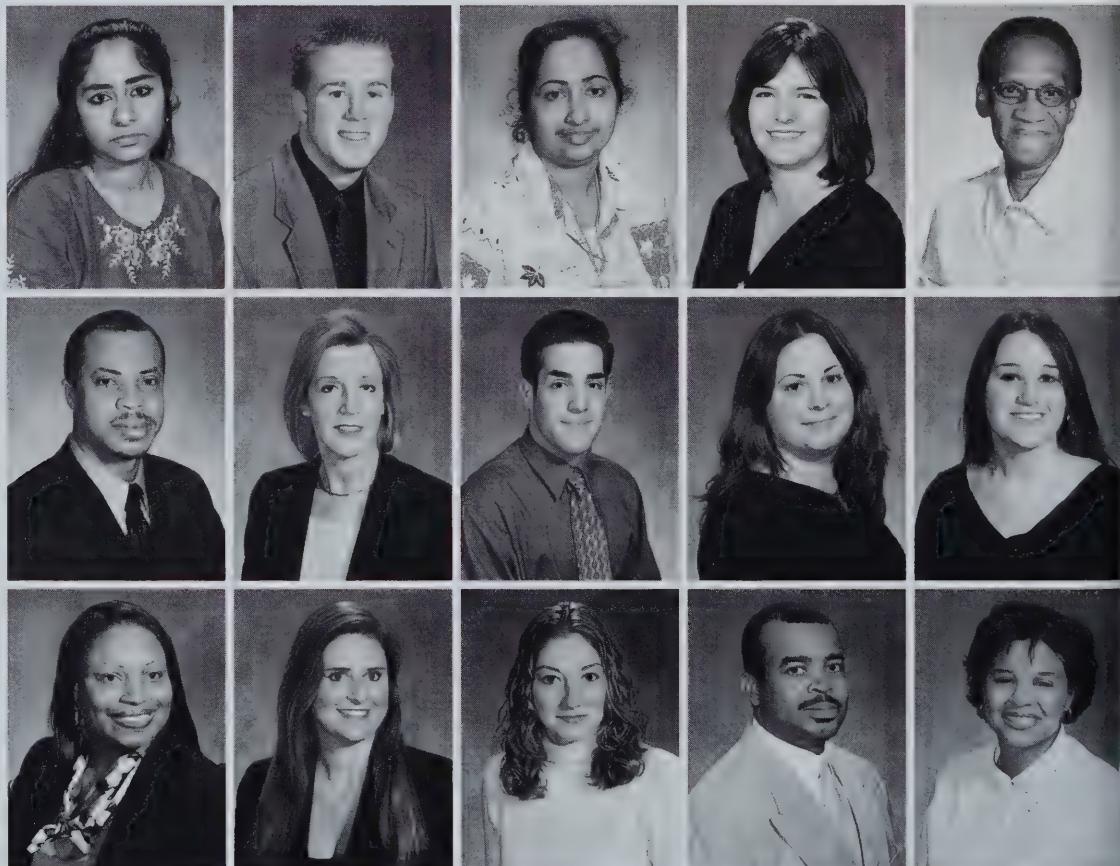

While on a break, Roamy, a Hertel resident, decided to visit the hotel where upperclassmen will be housed next year.

Audrey Lawrence cooking up another delicious dish for Food Night sponsored by the club DULCE. (Great way to go - eat your way around the world!)

Jessica and Jessica, always smiling, seen everywhere, made college and learning fun, the way it is supposed to be.

Seniors

The Class of 2003 Dominican College

From the 20th Century

to the 21st, the Class of 2003

crossed the bridge

readily accepting

all challenges before them

When you are a senior in college, the upward struggle takes a different turn. It is not about the term papers or picking a major or joining a club anymore; senior year is about choosing between the many roads diverging in the wood and acknowledging that your choices now are really about the rest of your life.... Your teachers and advisors have guided you this far, and your own moral compass will lead you the rest of the way. The exciting part about graduating from college is finding out how the world works, especially for you. And now you really are in charge, setting sail across that great ocean of adulthood....Somewhere between the want ads, job applications, graduate school catalogs, offers from the family business, wedding bells, dressing for success, rent receipts, and credit card invitations, seniors still just want to have fun.

Above, the last Dominican buffet for seniors. After graduation practice, onto the food! One more chance to share and enjoy.....

Left, WE MADE IT! The last day of classes and we did it, together, pals being pals.

Go for it. This is it. It's college and your time to get it going.

A little warm up right before class.

Campus Life

Let's call it a day

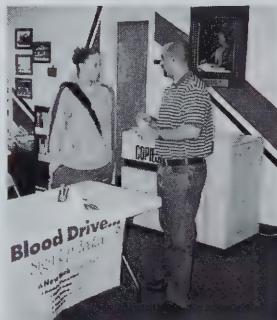

Getting down to work....Jessica Flores is always busy creating new events for the students, helping clubs set up parties, making phone calls, ordering supplies, decorating bulletin boards, talking to students and talking to students and talking to students....As Dominican College grows larger every year, there are more events to be planned. From Springfest to the International Fair to Freshman Orientation, this young woman juggles six balls in air at a time.

Denise Nahass, always smiling, always there....Hey Denise, where is the paper, pens, computers, chalk, napkins, my lunch card, and 387 other things? Every day, everyone on campus calls Denise because all purchasing for the college is done through her office. And somehow, no matter how many tasks she has to do, Denise is actually someone you can easily find in her office. Great!

Mic Swanwick, just talking to everybody....One more of the great guys who makes it happen for us. Mic is the Freshman Director and helps Dominican students go through the process of becoming real college students in their freshman year. Answering questions about classes, parking, textbooks, schedules, and 100 other things, he's guy we always ask.

Something tells me it's all happening in the cafe.... The day does not start until you have nourishment. And between classes. And after classes.

Lemont introduces the exciting new Starbucks set up. We were already hanging out, drinking coffee, and catching up on work in the cafe before Starbucks arrived.

The Days That Came....The Bookstore

Tiffany puts in an order for more textbooks while ringing up orders for the students.

In the 21st century, the right sweatshirt is a must for every college student's wardrobe. You can't start studying until you have all of your supplies.

[party's over]

welcome back to reality.

Do you have to remind us that the party is over? Fortunately, the fun at school is about to begin.

The
Social Work
Field Faculty
Luncheon

Cassandra Edwards, Lauren Torino, Dwight Richards, and Dr. Barbara Socar enjoy catching up on with each other.

Dr. Barbara Socor and Sally Borgman, MSW, spent many hours working with the young social workers-in-training to help them best serve their communities.

Yoselin Garcia, Prof. Bonni Raab, Dean Ann Vavolizza, and Dean Leigh Holt share ideas about making the program even better for the coming year.

S.T.E.P. Stepping Into Tomorrow With Extreme Power A dance group here at Dominican, the members learned about the joyful expression of rhythms and sounds. Everyone enjoyed their campus wide performances.

The Dominican Chorus Led by Prof. Greml, students prepared Spring concert held in the Palisades Room. The best part was, simply, the chance to sing those lovely songs over and over again.

With a few minutes left before the fair opened, DULCE members Audrey Lawrence and Julie-Ann Garcia worked on the finishing touches for their display.

of cultural enlightenment filled with the many colors
of the world...."

Hoping to gain the cultural enlightenment DULCE promises faculty and staff, as well as students looked at the displays.

International Fair

days of hearts and minds

DULCE, which means "sweet" in Spanish and stands for Dominican College Uniting Latinos for Cultural Education, was founded in 1998 by Betsy Tirado '00 and Jacqueline Garcia '99.

Historically, as a Latino

As the "tourists" arrived, dolls from many countries welcomed them with open arms.

organization, the goal was to introduce Hispanic culture to the college, and in turn, make a conscious effort to learn about other cultures that may be found at Dominican College and the neighboring communities. Now DULCE's goal is to provide the college with cultural enlightenment through educational and social programming.

The 4th Annual International Fair, known to many as a fun, learning experience, is one of DULCE's most successful events.

During this event, students, faculty, and staff got a glimpse of the music, dance, food, traditions, clothing, and history from over 15 countries. Some of the countries visited this year included Mexico, Haiti, Dominican Republic, Puerto Rico, Egypt, China, Ireland, Jamaica, Italy, and the Bahamas. Dedicated members worked diligently for months collecting data and props for their displays and preparing to answer any questions "the tourists" had.

That day, the Palisades Room transformed into a road map of cultural enlightenment filled with the many colors of the world and a rainbow of cultures with one goal...unity!

Practice made perfect for Chris Garcia and Audrey Lawrence as they danced the traditional salsa dance of Puerto Rico.

As the crowd enjoyed the sounds of the bongos played by Chris Garcia, Erik Alba and Alex Ramirez anted up a nice tip for the nice beats!

The Learning and Resource Center

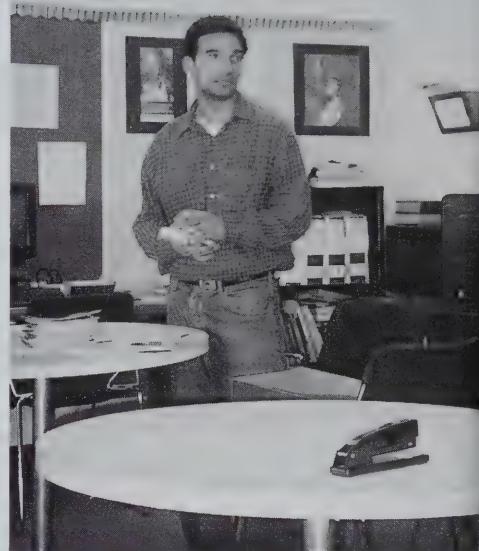

one day at a time....

Students come to Dominican College from the Hudson Valley, New York City, New England, across America, the Caribbean, and many other countries from around the world. There are also students who are already adults, have full time jobs and families, and are finishing up a promise to themselves by completing their college education. Dominican offers evening programs, weekend classes, and graduate degrees. Many of these students have not been in school for five or ten or fifteen years. Everyone wants to learn and the 21st Century workplace is placing more demands than ever before on the skilled workers who enter the workforce. With so many qualified people competing for the same slots, it is incumbent on the smart student to dot all the i's and cross all the t's. The Learning and Resource Center is open to every student on the Dominican Campus for additional help with English and math skills. Students can bring in their term papers for proofreading, receive one-on-one instruction in grammar, have advanced math explained, or get advice on the proper APA or MLA format for a term paper. Somewhere in between, everyone also finds some time to say hello, talk, and listen....

Life is for learning and who says school can't be fun? Student Irina and tutor Jessica celebrate another term paper, another opportunity to grow.

Lucien, taking a break from his latest project. Many students come to the Learning and Resource Center to get help on a variety of tasks.

Dr. Ellen Dolgin and Prof. Marguerite Dunne conferring on important issues.
"What's good on Broadway this month?"
"Have you seen the latest issue of the Coldwater Canyon catalogue?"

LRC director Ken Brelesky with one of the Center's favorite drop-ins, Adam Bond. Adam, the man of 1,001 new ideas, is explaining his latest.

Studying, writing, busy. Students can complete their work at large tables (great for spreading out all those books and papers) or use the computer for typing and internet research.

Carol Marks helped this student with every step of her research paper. While it is tempting these days to download a paper from the internet, the students who really want to learn take their time to really do every step. And the LRC really does work with them on every step.

Sitting down and getting it done. Many students come in, get help to get them started, and then, simply, go for it! It often helps just to know there is someone who can help nearby, just in case....

The Learning Resource Center, one day more....

A quiet Friday afternoon, the papers have been written, the research done, the grammar, punctuation, and spelling checked, the dorms quiet, and the commuters commuted. Full weekend ahead.

A full court in session, lunch, laughter, discussions, reading, editing, reviewing. Okay, ready for class now.... While the Learning Resource Center always has tutored in English and math, as the college expands, so will it. With the new science building to be completed soon, so too will the LRC expand its services to accommodate the Dominican students' needs.

Gio, the co-captain of the LRC ship, took care of everything. And he likes rabbits.

That'll be the Day

The spring is the time to plant seeds, and our graduates, together with students from three other colleges, were invited to a career fair held at Dominican to plant seeds for their futures.

Pens, keychains, notebooks, calendars, spiffy bags, generous smiles, and mountains of literature on the prospective employer were lavished on each job applicant.

What to ask for now? Sister Barbara helped two job seekers focus on the right questions for them to ask each company.

Over seventy companies were represented including businesses, school districts, and the armed services. Benefits for the new employees included signing bonuses, health care, flexible schedules, moving expenses, management training, discounts, and travel.

A bird's eye view of the 2003 Career Fair. Over 400 student candidates brought their resumes, dressed for success, and shook hands, ready to begin their careers.

Greg was only asking....but how about becoming a real life hero by joining the Navy?

Go climb a tree....and begin a new life. Ira Wickes Arborists is a third generation family business looking for people who would like to landscape.

Personal Best Days

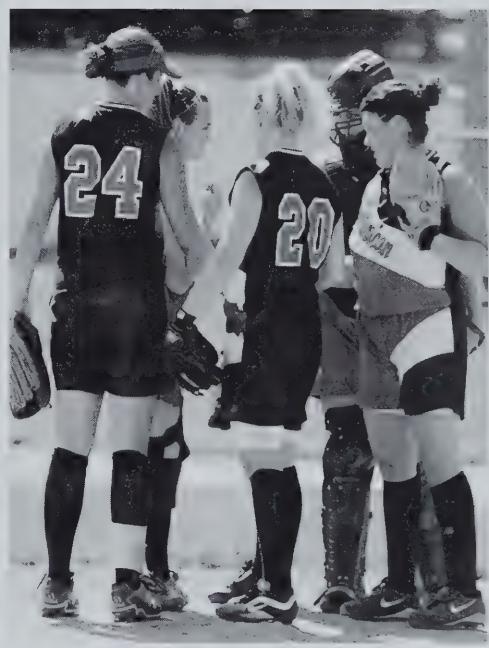

Sports at Dominican

There are many hardships for the student athlete who is playing a collegiate sport and trying to get a college education. Student athletes have to learn how to balance both academics and practice and games. We all know how much time is put into playing a sport in college. For example, basketball players can practice five times a week for a total of 16 hours, not including games.

The worst thing is when a student athlete must travel away to games out of state and s/he has papers to do for the next day. Students must realize that schooling always come first, sport second, even though they are “getting paid” (scholarships) for their service to the school.

by John Tripodi.

Editor's note: To all of the athletes and coaches who unselfishly give of their time and talent to support our college, we are most grateful.
